PC Jack Bigg Re-Elected

Voters in the Athabasca Constituency followed the trend of the Western Provinces in Monday's Federal Election when they returned Jack Bigg, the Progressive Conservative candidate, to his seat in the House of Commons.

MORE VOTES THAN 1958

Mr. Bigg returned to his office with a margin of 4,171 votes above his nearest opponent, Jules Van Brabant, the Liberal candidate. This is a greater percentage of votes than he received in the last federal election.

Th other candidates were; J. Mikkleson, Social Credit, and Pierre Vallee of the New Democratic Party.

IN RCMP

A former RCMP sergeant, Mr. Bigg has a law degree from the University of Toronto. His home is in Westlock where he resides with his wife and three daughters.

PM JOHN DIEFENBAKER

Quebec Socreds Success Pleases Leader Thompson

The Social Credit party was in for some surprises last Monday. In most ridings Socreds retained about the same strength they showed in 1958 when the party finished second to 17 Tories who rode the Diefenbaker bandwagon from Alberta to Ottawa.

But if Socred leader Robert Thompson was disappointed in the party's showing in this province, the startling results in Quebec more than made up for it.

18 IN QUEBEC

The strong showing by Mr. Caouette and his Quebec Social Crediters, who took 18 seats from the Conservatives and eight from the Liberals, places them in a dominant position within the party led by Robert N. Thompson who won in Red Deer, in Alberta.

Social Credit guns were mainly in marginal agricultural areas in the eastern and northern parts of the province and in areas populated by modest wage-earners. Many were by wide margins.

NEW LEADER

The question now is, with 28 Socred seats in Quebec and only two in Alberta, whether Dr. Thompson will retain the leadership of the Social Credit Party.

All unofficial reports that the "Real" head of the Socreds may soon be a Frenchman have been denied so far.

Major Parties Had To Woo Rural Voters

A survey of rural and urban voting strength indicated why all four political parties dug hard for farm support in the June 18 federal election.

Although census figures show a continuing decline in the farm population, 121 of Canada's 263 constituencies appeared to be dominated by rural voters.

The survey was based on designation of the estimated 44,400 polling divisions across the country as either urban or rural.

By that yardstick, 44 constituencies were completely rural and 62 completely urban. There were another 77 with a predominantly rural vote and 45 where urban voters held a decisive edge. The remaining 35 were a balanced urban-rural mixture.

A near-record or record turnout of voters was tabulated last week in rural constituencies.

Rural voting divisions usually have fewer voters than urban ones. In 1958, votes cast in urban polls averaged 183 compared with 137 in rural polls.

Election Round-up

How did the federal election go in Alberta? How do the leaders feel about it? And what are the implications for the future?

Albertans may find a summary of these important issues on the front page of this week's Alberta Country Life, enclosed in this paper.

Conservatives Strong In West While Socreds Sweep Quebec

Canada elected its second minority government in five years last week.

A minority government—where no party wins at least half of the nation's 265 seats—would open the way for makeshift coalitions at the next parliament opening in September and another election probably within six months.

The natural partners appeared to be the Conservatives and Social Credit and the Liberals and New Democrats. The election could come either by the minority government deciding on its own to seek an overall mandate, or through its defeat by the combined opposition forces.

The resurgent Liberal party, led by Nobel Peace Prize winner Lester B. Pearson, dropped off after a strong showing in central Canada and ended with 96 elected and one deferred.

The right-wing Social Credit party, known for its unorthodox "printing press money" financial theory, raced into third place on the strength of an amazing showing in Quebec. The Socreds, led by 47-year-old Red Deer chiropractor Robert N. Thompson, won 30 ridings.

The New Democrats suffered a sharp setback in Regina, Sask., where party leader T. C. Douglas, former provincial premier lost, leaving the movement temporarily without a head in the House.

On the successful side, Diefenbaker won easily, as did Pearson and Thompson. So did several key cabinet ministers— external affairs minister Howard Green, Fleming, defense minister Douglas Harkness and trade minister George Hees—and a number of Liberal top brass, including John W. Pickersgill, Paul Martin, Lionel Chevrier and newcomers C. M. Drury, Maurice Sauve, and Walter Gordon.

On a regional basis, the Conservatives were strong in east and west. In central Canada, however, they took a severe beating—from the Liberals in Ontario and the Liberals and Social Credit in Quebec.

While no one seemed ready to talk of coalitions and another election in six months, both appeared in the offing. It seemed likely the Conservatives would combine with the Social Credit to present a program to the next parliament opening in September.

Four cabinet ministers—Noel Dorion, William Hamilton, Jacques Flynn and David Walker — were knocked from the Conservative ranks, as were Commons speaker Roland Michener and his deputy, Paul Martineau.

THE LEADERS SPEAK:

No Coalition Forseen To Aid Minority Government

As polls closed across the nation and results began to pour in last Monday night, the party leaders expressed the following opinions on the election trends.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, whose party will hold the balance of power in the new parliament, announced he would not enter into a coalition.

His stand was decisive and unequivocal. "We will not go into any coalition," he said.

"We will cooperate with the Diefenbaker government to give stability over an interim period during which the necessary measures of legislation essential to carry on orderly government can be formulated and passed.

"But there will be no coalition. And at the earliest practical moment there will be another election. And when it is held, the story of the result will be very different from this one."

PEARSON SAYS

Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson said the Conservative government has been "decisively rejected" by the voters and called on Prime Minister John Diefenbaker to make an early decision about the course he will follow.

He declined comment on the possibility of another election in the near future in the face of what is almost certain to be another minority government situation.

DIEF DISAPPOINTED

Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, his record Conservative majority sliced to an unsure minority, greeted the results of Canada's 25th general election with disappointment, but a pledge to carry on.

"While I am disappointed that the government does not have an overall majority, the present situation is not without precedent," the Conservative leader told a nationwide television audience as final returns dwindled in.

Diefenbaker pointed out the late Liberal Prime Minister Mackenzie King had carried on for four years in the 1920's without an overall majority in the House of Comomns.

NO COMMENT—DOUGLAS

National Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas, who lost to Conservative incumbent Kenneth H. More in Saskatchewan's Regina City riding, said he has "no plans at the moment." Douglas, who resigned as Saskatchewan's CCF premier last August to lead the NDP, refused to say whether his defeat feat would mean his resignation as party leader.

The loss was the first since 1934 for Douglas, 57, former Baptist minister and Member of Parliament from 1935-44. Douglas won five consecutive provincial elections in Saskatchewan, and is regarded as one of the most polished platform performers in the country.

Mr. More said Douglas's defeat spells "the final defeat of socialism here where it was born."

Intelligence is the art of judging a speech by what is said, not by how loud it is said.

Town First To Have Own Gas System Sage President Tells Lac la Biche

On an invitation of the Lac la Biche chamber of commerce, Blake Sage, president of Sage Oil Co , addressed a group of men and ladies at the Legion Hall and showed slides of Sage gas discovery wells in the Lac la Biche area. He also showed slides of the first oil well in the Leduc area that was reopened by Sage Oil Scientific Discovery.

He assured the gathering, which comprised mainly local business men, that the name 'Sage' will always be remembered, as the gas supplied to the home owners in Lac la Biche and the town is the first in the province to have its own gas system, and would serve as a model to other towns.

He related the numerous difficulties that were encountered when drilling operations first commenced in a new locality and the numerous details to be attended to, including building of roads and bridges. Some six-foot culverts were ordered for a stretch of road that extended north of Owl River.

But all this is but a trifle when compared to the numerous regulations laid down by the Conservation Board.

The recent well drilled in the area in May of this year are promising and his company will press for a fair deal of private enterprise. He related the recent regulations governing the assessment and taxation of pipelines as most unfair.

The large gas companies are monopolizing the supply of gas and are guaranteed 7c on the dollar, while the small man is responsible for drilling cost to find the gas and assume all the risk and have no guarantee of anything on his investment cost.

Flying Jet Planes Startle Livestock

BOYLE — Flying jets in the district are fast becoming a nuisance and could become a hazard.

They are flying tree-top heights over pastures and farm homes, startling the people and the livestock.

Only a farmer or rancher can realize the dangers of this operation which could cause injury to livestock by stampeding through fences, into grain field, completely destroying grain in their mad rush through the fields.

If low-flying in training for air defence is necessary, the community is convinced that the territory north and east of Cold Lake air base is quite suitable for this operation, as it appears that the jets coming over here are from that base.

The man who lives by the golden rule today never has to apologize for his actions tomorrow.

Lac La Biche Council Approves Building Permits For $34,300

LAC LA BICHE — At the regular meeting of Town Council, held June 12, building permits totalling $34,300 were approved. Two permits were for dwellings to cost $12,000 each; one was for improvements to an existing dwelling, to cost $10,000, and one was for a small warehouse estimated to cost $300. One application for permission to move an old house to a new location was refused on the grounds that the building was not fit for the residential area to which it was to be relocated.

Third and final reading was given a by-law making it necessary for every trade and business in the town to procure an annual licence from the town. A schedule of fees, varying according to the type of trade or business, was approved as part of the by-law. The amount of the licence fee paid by the trade or business will be deducted from the amount of business tax payable when business taxes are levied.

The secretary was instructed to give notice to three property owners to install water and sewer connections within 30 days under authority of by-law No. 298.

Salary increases of varying amounts were authorized to the town's regular employees.

The meeting was adjourned to the following Tuesday when plans for financing sewer and water extensions were to be disusssed with the town's consulting engineers.

Present for the meeting were: Councillors, J. H. Wolstenholme, L. J. Badry, Dr. D. D. Bouvier, F. W. McMillan and L. H. Vincent, as well as the Secretary, F. D. Creighton. In the absence of the mayor, Deputy Mayor L. H. Vincent presided.

Heavy Rains Turn Fields Into Miniature Lakes

Vilna experienced one of the heaviest rainfalls on record the night of June 5. In a 24-hour period a total of four inches of rain fell. This was recorded on the farm of Mr. Pacholek where a regular rain gauge was installed. This, in addition to daily showers and heavy clouds and unseasonably cold weather, has turned whole fields into miniature lakes.

Farmers who planned on cultivating fields for late crops have given up hope of doing anything this year. The farm of Mr. Pobrun, just south of Vilna seems the hardest hit. His buildings are situated some distance from the the highway. His driveway is under two-feet of water. He uses a canoe to reach the road.

The first mile of road allowance South of Vilna is running over with water six inches deep.

Water Safety News

From time to time, we are faced with the problem of what to do in a dilemma. It is wise to encourage alertness by having children test their propensity for acting quickly through mock situations.

Here is a complex situation requiring sharp water safety alertness: A group of children are swimming near a pier at a lakeside front. Suddenly a child yells for help. He is about 100 feet from the dock. There are some boats moored at shore but they are 200 feet away. However, there is a ring buoy attached to a great quantity of rope but you cannot throw it the entire distance. What should you do?

First take the ring buoy and tie the rope end to the pier. Next throw the buoy to the victim in an underhanded fashion. It may go half the distance. Now slip off heavy footwear and jump into water, keeping person in sight. Swim out to him using head-up crawl, pushing the buoy in front of you.

The boat, although tempting, would be foolhardy because it would use up precious time and secondly if the victim sank, you could only approximate the place of sinking.

Re-enact simple situations. Use "READ THIS" material available at the swimming pool. This situation reveals the number of decisions which have to be made in a split second.

Florence Carew, Joseph Hryhorak Pledge Vows At Highlands Church

ABEE — Miss Florence Carew became the bride of Mr. Joseph Hryhorak in an afternoon ceremony at Highlands United Church. Rev. Mr. King officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Carew of Edmonton, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Pauline Hryhorak of Abee and the late Mr. Hryhorak.

For her wedding the bride chose a floral powder blue sheath gown with a three-quarter-length coat of matching material. She wore a white cloche hat and white gloves. She carried a white Bible overlaid with red roses and stephanotis.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father.

The bride's attendants were Mrs. Leroy Eigard, the matron-of-honr, who wore a powder blue silk organza dress; Miss Margery Wawryko, the bridesmaid, who wore a carnation pink silk organza dress. They wore matching head-dress halos of sequins and carried pink and white carnations.

Mr. Leroy Eigard was the groom's best man and Mr. H. Dilk was usher.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Carew chose a white suit trimmed in white fur. She wore a pink rose corsage and blue accessories.

The groom's mother wore a beige dress with pink corsage and white accessories.

A reception was held in Abee Community Hall for some 250 guests. Mr. John Eckert acted as master-of-ceremonies.

The bridal couple was ushered into the hall by two bagpipers and a drummer dressed in Scottish kilts.

Several numbers were played during the evening by the pipers.

The music for the dance was supplied by Silvery Mist Orchestra from Vegreville.

Mr. and Mrs. Hryhorak are spending their honeymoon in west United States.

The young couple will make their home in Edmonton.

Zukowsky Catches 16½-Pound Pike In Creek On Farm

BONNY LAKE — This lake has yielded another pike that tipped the scales at 16½ pounds. It was caught on a regular line by one of the Zukowsky boys in a creek on his farm. The fish measured 38 inches in length.

Fish of this size are regularly caught in Bonny Lake. This lake is not big in area as lakes go but it is very deep. In places a line 40 feetlong did not touch bottom.

Perhaps, the fact that it has so many connects by creeks to other larger lakes explains the very large fish caught here.

Almost five inches of rain came down in the 48-hour period.

It Is Like That In a Hotel Lobby

Conversation in the lobby of the Bonnyville Hotel during the five and a half inch rainfall last week was restricted almost entirely to the effects of the rain.

The only time the subject was changed was when one of the travellers thought they caught Mrs. Jim Demers cheating at Scrabble by using a word that is not in the dictionary.

Mrs. Demers has a very good dictionary (it would be unfair advertising to mention the name of the publisher), but it is full of surprises. For instance did you know that jee means the same as gee and is a legitimate word? Or that you can spell carat with a "k" if you wish, both spellings being correct. Queue is a noun and cannot be used as a verb and although it can also be spelled "cue", the first spelling is the accepted way. All this is in the dictionary, but Mrs. Demers knew it before anyone looked. Her husband teases her saying that many times at 4 a.m. she is still studying the dictionary.

But back to the other topic of conversation, the storm. As each traveller would arrive at the hotel he would be greeted by "Where did you come from, and is it raining there?" Most of them are from Edmonton and somehow no one seemed to feel any better to know that Edmonton was not suffering the same as this area.

Other stories started to come into the hotel; one lane of traffic on the Beaver Crossing Hill was washed out; cars have been pulled through the construction near Grand Centre since Monday; the Pierce-and detour will be washed out anytime as the water is up to the road level in several places.

Mrs. Gene Hadley, Sun Publishing Co. representative, and the only female of the species on the road reecived advice from everyone. "You must not drive so fast when the roads are so slippery; you'll never make it over to Grand Centre or Cold Lake, don't even try to go to Fort Kent." An official at the air base advised "If you haven't got a helicopter, stay where you are." It was a chorus of "don't go—don't go—don't go." One traveller even advised her to tell her boss this was no country for a woman on the road.

By Wednesday tales of washouts on Highway 41 were coming to the hotel. It was reported that schools were closed in Elk Point and even the telephone service had been disrupted by the high winds and pouring rains. It was now hard to sort out rumor from fact.

Then came the stories of Cold Lake village being almost washed away; that water was running into the back of the post office and the drug store on the lake front, and the only method found to cope with the situation was to open the front door and let it run out.

The roof of the hotel was by now leaking from the driving rain and all windows on the west side were so water logged that they would not open.

And so the travellers put in one of the worst weeks in history. There was no business, for the stores were selling only bare necessities as the local residents stayed under cover as much as they could. As these 'men of the road" packed up to leave the hotel, each one was thinking "It better not be raining at home when I get there."

There are not too many hotels on any run where the travellers do not have to put up with loud talk, profane language and complete lack of socialibility, and at least all were glad they were in the Bonnyville Hotel for this experience. They offer a tip of the hat to the cheerful Demers who keep their lobby such that travellers can enjoy a few minutes or a few hours together discussing the topics of the day whether it be storms or just elections.

The detour to Grand Centre did wash out; Mrs. Demers kept right on winning at Scrabble except for when she was playing cards or studying the dictionary; and Mrs. Hadley, who prides herself on being a fair driver, went back to Edmonton without even trying to get to Cold Lake.

District Home Economist, Westlock
By Bertha M. McCutcheon

The 4-H Clothing Clubs have now finished a very satisfactory year. The culmination for the entire district was the Rally at Westlock on June 9th in the lower hall of St. Mary's Church. Despite rain and muddy roads over one hundred and fifty attended. Thirteen Clothing Clubs and four Garden Clubs were represented. They were Amber Valley; Flatbush; Grassland & Smith Garden Clubs. Barrhead; Clyde; Dapp; Eastburg; Flatbush; Grassland; Highridge; Linaria; Manold; Naples; Rochester; Tawatinaw and Smith Clothing Clubs.

B. McCutcheon

Miss Louise Roose from the Junior Activities Branch of the Extension Service, Department of Agriculture attended to judge the demonstrations and she also gave the girls many useful pointers for improving them. Four girls will be chosen to represent this area at Provincial Competitions at Olds on August 7 and 8.

Mr. Ed Ness from the Alberta Wheat Pool attended. He presented Clyde with the Best Garden Club Award for 1961.

Mr. S. R. Mapp of Amber Valley received a five-year leadership Award.

A full program of demonstrations interspersed with items of entertainment kept everyone busy until three-thirty.

It was very gratifying to see so many club leaders, members and mothers attend. I sincerely appreciate the cooperation of the various committees which resulted in such a successful day.

We are especially indebted to Monseignor Rooney for the use of St. Mary's Lower Hall, to the Northern Alberta Dairy Pool who supplied chocolate milk and to the Alberta Wheat Pool for ice cream.

We hope all of the clubs will carry on with the same enthusiasm they displayed on Rally Day.

Transport Department Technician Granted $360 Suggestion Award

Stephen Baxter, a radio technician with the Department of Transport Telecommunications Branch at Edmonton, has been granted an award of $360 by the Suggestion Award Board of the Public Service of Canada, it was announced by the Department of Transport recently.

Mr. Baxter will be presented with the money in recognition of his suggested remedy for difficulties that had arisen in operation of an electronic aid to air navigation at Edmonton Airport.

The Department estimated the saving resulting from implementation of the suggestion at $7,500. The Board approved an award of $360.

The problem solved by Mr. Baxter's suggestion arose when radio signals, directing aircraft pilots along a glide path to the airport, were distorted by being partially deflected by the presence of buildings in the path of the signals. Mr. Baxter suggested the installation of a type of screen which would deflect the signals prior to them reaching the buildings, and divert them in a manner that would not distort the glide path signals being picked up by aircraft pilots.

His idea was put into effect and proved successful. Had it not been so, departmental officials stated, it would have been necessary to relocate the glide path equipment or perhaps even relocate the whole ILS, Instrument Landing System, at the airport at a much greater cost.

Mr. Baxter was commended by departmental officials for "perseverence and ingenuity" in his understanding. He resides at 10643 59th Street, Edmonton.

There is nothing wrong with the idea that looking ahead and planning for the future is smart.

Automation Comes To ADCHQ

ST.HUBERT, Que.—A data processing centre was officially opened by the AOC, A/V/M W. R. MacBrien at ADCHQ on May 24. This installation represents the first important step in a data automation program to convert many manually compiled reports and reporting procedures to a mechanized process.

Traditional manual procedures have been found to be time consuming and costly and unable to cope with the increasing demands for timely and accurate management data.

A typical example under consideration is the reporting of flying hours. The basic record of flying times, the F17, contains all the information required for the completion of half a dozen summary reports and returns. Under the mechanized system, copies of the F17 will be sent to the data processing centre where all the data for each flight will be punched into a card. Using high speed data processing equipment, the cards will be sorted, summarized and tabulated to produce the required management information, thus eliminating the many returns from the units. This is only one of many applications under study but is typical of the tremendous benefits offered through data automation.

A word of advice came also from I. Goresky, Superintendent of Schools in the Thorhild County, who spoke on the history of education.

Valedictorian was Jerry Rudnisky, the Governor-General's Medal winner.

Protect Dogwoods From Borers

If you planted a dogwood tree this spring, give it special attention as it is particularly susceptible to several kinds of borers. Healthy trees are far less susceptible to borer injury, but young, newly transplanted trees may be low in vitality for the first year or two and borers show a marked preference for trees weakened from transplanting or drought.

As shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, the flat-headed apple tree borer is one of the worst enemies.

This pest spends the winter as a grub holed up in a tree, usually lying with the body curved. It tunnels just under the bark until full size (one inch), then bores deeper into the wood. The tunnels, filled with sawdust borings, also contain excelsior-like fibres which protrude as shown.

Other borers also attack, such as the dogwood borer and the dogwood twig borer.

Newly planted trees should have their trunks wrapped with strips of burlap or the special tree-wrap paper made for the purpose. Such a covering serves as a barrier to the egg-laying females. It serves a double purpose as it prevents both sunscald and drying out of the bark. It is a known fact that borers prefer to work in dry sapwood.

Painting or spraying the trunks of the dogwood tree with DDT in early June and again three weeks later gives excellent control. Use a 25 per cent DDT emulsion—one ounce to a gallon of water.

Kleparchuk Bags Lynx Near Home

LAMONT — Awakened by his excited dogs, Mike Kleparchuk was faced with a fierce problem on his hands Monday morning. The dogs had treed a stray lynx near his garden. Two well placed 22 calibre shots downed him quickly.

It was a fair-sized cat weighing approximately 50 pounds. Mr. Kleparchuk brought the animal to town and school for the people to see as it is not a common thing at Lamont.

Rare Black Gopher Found At Elk Point

ELK POINT — A rare black gopher was recently trapped on the farm of Peter Andrishak According to the University of Alberta, the colony of black gophers found on his farm was the only one ever recorded in the province of Alberta, although one was reported in the N.W.T.

Pete has donated it to Storyland Zoo in Edmonton, where it is now on exhibit.

Also on his farm, Pete has a family of red foxes, consisting of the male, the female and four young ones. Peter reports they are quite tame, oft times letting him walk within a very short distance of them before diving for cover.

JIM CEBULIAK, third place winner in the 1962 edition of the provincial Teen Age Safe Driving Roadeo, backing through a donble line of rubber balls in the "straight line reverse test."

Boyle Committee Seeks Rodeo Queen Candidates

BOYLE — Continious heavy rains are further delaying spring seeding. There have also been unavoidable delays in regard to the fair catalog, Rodeo Queen and bingo tickets, due to election printing, but this is over now, and the tickets will be available about the time you read this.

There is still plenty of time so far as the tickets are concerned. The delay will have given later starters in the "Queen" contest a more even chance.

The committee still has no report from would-be Rodeo Queen contestants from the Boyle-Grassland area and it would be disappointed should none appear. This area is part of the Athabasca county, and should definitely be represented. There have been reports of interested parties, but "no horses". The group realizes it will require time for people to become horse-minded, but this will come in time.

School entries for the Fair should be ready by this time. Entry tags and forms for exhibits can be secured from the secretary, Mrs. Wolfer, at Perryvale, or picked up at the provincial building. It will simplify matters for the Fair secretary if each exhibitor will have an entry form, one form for all entries he or she may have, but an entry tag on every exhibit. The teacher, or individual taking care of these exhibits at each school, should number each entry. Grassland would be G1, G2, etc., and that number would appear on each entry tag of that particular exhibitor. Boyle school would have B1, B2, etc., on their entry form and tags. It would be nice to see a few dozen entries from these schools, as well as those from Athabasca, Rochester, Perryvale and Colinton.

It is not too early to begin planing entries for the Fair, be it needlecraft, cooking or horticulture. The association wishes to see a larger entry of livestock too, and will try to give pointers for would-be exhibitors in future issues of this paper.

WA Activities

BOYLE — The June meeting of the Anglican WA was held Thursday afternoon of last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Hayton Jr., with one member absent.

The meeting was opened by the singing of the selected hymn and followed by the creed.

It was decided to hold a strawberry tea July 6.

A gift certificate and the signatures of all members enclosed was sent to Nancy Weaver.

There will be no meetings held in July and August. The September meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Good.

A delightful social half hour was enjoyed during lunch which was served by the hostess.

90% of all oil company product research in Canada is done by Imperial

At Imperial Oil's laboratories at Sarnia, Ontario, more than 200 scientists and technicians are working to improve present petroleum products—and to develop new ones. Their research covers many fields, from gasolines to household detergents.

Another 130 scientists and technicians are working at Imperial's Calgary laboratories on ways to find and produce more Canadian crude oil and natural gas. Imperial does more research than all other oil companies in Canada combined.
